mirketa

Call   Email

Technology Buzz 2021

Wednesday, February 03, 2021   Volume #1, Issue #1

2020 was difficult, but it also showed the importance of Technology and its application in our day-to-day lives.

Starting afresh, Mirketa is excited to share a host of new capabilities and Tech Buzz for 2021. Stay Tuned!!

Highlights of this Issue

» Salesforce + Slack

» Hyperforce

» GraphQL in Mulesoft

» Getting started in your Salesforce coding project - Six Steps

Salesforce + Slack

There is no doubt that Slack will expand its user base with Salesforce help. The question is whether the combination of the two through this acquisition will be providing more value to the Salesforce Customers. The answer is Yes and No.

Read More »

Hyperforce

Besides the acquisition of Slack, the most significant announcement that Salesforce has made in 2020 is the launch of the new capability – Hyperforce. With Hyperforce, Salesforce has made significant changes to its platform architecture hence enabling its customers to deploy their Salesforce apps and services on all major cloud platforms like Azure, AWS, Google, and Alibaba.

Read More »

Hyperforce
The world's #1 CRM, available on major public clouds

Hyper-Scale   Local Data Storage

Built-in Trust & Compliance

100% Backwards Compatible

GraphQL in Mulesoft

GraphQL, for APIs and a runtime is an open-source query language for fulfilling those queries together with your existing data. GraphQL provides an entire and understandable description of the info in your API, gives clients the facility to invite exactly what they have and zip more, makes it easier to enables powerful developer tools, and evolve APIs over time.

Read More »

Getting started in your Salesforce coding project - Six Steps

You are a developer in a new Salesforce project. Or you are a CIO that is curious about the journey that your organization is about to take on Salesforce platform with more rollouts planned after your marketing / sales teams went live.

Read More »

mirketa